

THE CHILDREN WHO STAYED BEHIND

Brighton is braced for war. It's a time in history that never happened, and England's coast has become the front line of the Second World War. Rolls of barbed wire line Brighton Beach, soldiers scan the horizon, people wait nervously for an attack. When an emergency evacuation is announced, people hurry to pack up and get out, but in...

Reader's Opinions

Once I got going, it is a nice sweet children's story.

AKA The Kidnaping of Kensington. 1958. Quite an exciting children's story about children left behind alone in Brighton when the entire town is evacuated due to expected German invasion during WWII.
