

THE DISINHERITED

Manila, 2000. Forty-four-year-old Roger Caracera returns to his birthplace after nearly three decades in the United States. He has come to bury the corrupt, charismatic head of the family sugar dynasty: his estranged father, Jesus. To Caracera's chagrin and pleasure, he is now viewed by his countrymen as the representative American; a local tabloid even refers to him as a General Douglas MacArthur look-alike. And when his father's will is read,...

Reader's Opinions

A great book. I loved the writing--the twisty, contorted sentences that often arrive at a startling end I didn't see coming at the beginning--and I found his take on postcolonialism and its toll on human lives hard-hitting and absorbing. This book comes close to being a masterpiece. I'm so glad I stumbled upon it.
