

IL PIANISTA

Il 23 settembre 1939 Wladyslaw Szpilman, un giovane pianista di Varsavia, suonò il "Notturmo" in C diesis minore di Chopin per la radio locale, mentre le bombe tedesche cadevano sulla città. Più tardi, un ordigno tedesco distrusse la centrale elettrica e la stazione radio polacca fu ridotta al silenzio. La guerra precipitò Varsavia nell'orrore dell'occupazione nazista. Rinchiusi nel ghetto, gli ebrei furono a poco a poco decimati. Agghiacciato testimone degli eventi che porteranno alla rivolta e all'evacuazione della città, Szpilman vide...

Peek Inside the Book

Street traders were doing good business selling a paper toy which represented a pig, but if you put the paper together and unfolded it in a certain way it turned into Hitler's face. Wladyslaw Szpilman, The Pianist //

Humanity seems doomed to do more evil than good. The greatest ideal on earth is human love. Wilm Hosenfeld, The Pianist: The Extraordinary Story of One Man's Survival in Warsaw, 1939-45 //

Reader's Opinions

best book talking about war I recommend it

Really 3.5 This is a short account of one Jewish man's survival in Warsaw during WWII. According to the epilogue, he wrote his account down shortly after the ordeal had ended. It is told in a very matter-of-fact manner, yet I still found it compelling. His survival is no less than remarkable. Many, many times one other action by either...
